JULY MEMBERSHIP MEETING

On the balmy evening of Friday, July 15, VHOC members attended the General Membership meeting at "The Field" to learn how to get started in the popular sport of K9 Nose Work and Scent Work. Jinny Chow, USCSS (United States Canine Scent Sports) Judge and volunteer, presented information about NACSW (National Association of Canine Scent Work), AKC and other scent work organizations.

Jinny discussed introducing nose work/scent work by starting your dog on primary (food or toy reward); she explained the types of "scents" used in competition (essential oils such as birch, clove, anise, cypress) in the various organizations and the levels of trial competition.

Following the informative presentation, Jinny and her husband, Sterling, demonstrated several searches in the Field with their Papillons—3-year-old Lexie and 6-month-old Sophie.

VHOC provided pizza and water; members brought delicious side dishes and desserts. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the food, the discussion (asking great questions) and the demonstrations. It was a fun meeting!

We had a great
July
15th
General
Meeting

Thank you to Carole Hills for the General Meeting write up.

We have a short YouTube video clip taken by Carole Hills of Jinny Chow's youngest Papillon Sophie at the General Meeting:

Saving your pet with CPR

With pets increasingly being treated like a member of the family, many owners are learning emergency techniques like CPR to keep their pet alive before bringing it to a veterinarian.

If there is no breathing and no pulse, begin CPR immediately.

Areas to check for pulse

Check for breathing and pulse

Check pulse using middle and index finger below the wrist, inner thigh (femoral artery); below the ankle or where left elbow touches the chest

Look for other warning signs

Gums and lips will appear gray-colored. Pupils will be dilated and not responsive to light.

Gums

Pupils

If not breathing, give breath to animal

Cats and small dogs
Place your mouth over its nose and mouth to blow air in.

Medium-large dogs
Place your mouth over its nose to blow air in.

Heimlich maneuver

If breath won't go in, airway may be blocked. Turn dog upside down, with its back against your chest. Wrap your arms around the dog and clasp your hands together just below its rib cage (since you're holding the dog upside down, it's above the rib cage, in the abdomen.) Using both arms, give five sharp thrusts to the abdomen. Then check its mouth or airway for the object. If you see it, remove it and give to more rescue breaths.

Start compressions if no pulse

Lay animal on right side and place hand over ribs where its elbow touches the chest. Begin compressions. Do not give compressions if dog has pulse.

Repeat procedure

Check pulse after 1 minute and then every few minutes.

Continue giving CPR until the animal has a pulse and is breathing.

Compressions per breath of air

Animal size	Compress chest	Compressions per breath of air
Cat/small dog (Under 30 lbs.)	1/2-1 inch	5
Medium-large dog (30-90lbs.)	1-3 inches	5
Giant dog (over 90lbs.)	1-3 inches	10

Stop CPR after 20 minutes.

This CPR chart can be purchased from the Colosvo store:

Is the Weather Too Hot for Your Dog to Handle? Watch for These Signs

By Stanley Coren, PhD

Jul 22, 2022 | 3 Minutes

https://www.akc.org/expert-advice/health/weather-too-hot-to-handle-signs/?utm\_medium=email&utm\_source=newsletter&utm\_campaign=20220727\_nibble\_general

It was a warm, spring day and a neighbor and I were watching some dogs charging around playfully in a fenced, dog-park area, seemingly oblivious to the heat. My neighbor commented, “You know, if we were running around like that we would be drenched in sweat. Dogs must be marvelously adapted to handle the heat.”

In truth, dogs are designed to handle cold better than heat. For humans, our major method of keeping cool is through perspiration. As our sweat evaporates, it results in a cooling effect, which lowers our body temperature. Dogs don't.

Dogs have two types of sweat glands: merocrine glands (similar to human sweat glands) and apocrine glands. Merocrine glands are not widely distributed as they are in people but are mostly found in the paw pads. Sweating through their paws helps dogs cool down, at least a little. The apocrine glands are located throughout the body, and these also produce sweat in dogs, but this type of sweat doesn't serve a cooling function. Rather, apocrine sweat contains pheromones, which are scent cues that convey information about the dog and help dog-to-dog communication.

Open Wide

The major way in which your dog cools down is through panting. This is their primary means of thermoregulation (an animal's ability to keep their body temperature within safe boundaries). When your dog needs to cool down, their tongue may hang out of their mouth and their breathing will speed up. Dogs have a typical resting respiratory rate of 15 to 30 breaths per minute, but this rate can get significantly faster when panting. Panting moves the hot air in and out, and that airflow increases moisture evaporation from the mouth, mucous membranes of the nasal passages, and lungs. This effectively cools the body from the inside out.

The hotter your dog is, the faster and harder he may pant. You may have noticed that sometimes your dog will pause in their panting to take a deep breath, and then return to short, rapid breathing. That's because panting is not an effective way of exchanging air in the lungs. The panting pause occurs because your dog is taking a large breath to maintain oxygen levels in the blood.

Is the Weather Too Hot for Your Dog to Handle? Watch for These Signs - Continued

Dogs have another interesting and unique way to help them cool down and this is through a process called vasodilation, where the blood actually seeks to cool itself. The process involves the blood vessels expanding and rising toward the skin level where the external air can then cool the blood before it returns to the heart. Vasodilation occurs mostly in the face and ears.

Canine Cool-Downs

Dogs have behavioral tricks they use to keep cool. Obviously seeking shade is helpful, as is stretching out flat on a tile floor, looking like a pelt with their belly to the ground and their paws splayed out. The fur on the dog's belly is thinner than the fur on the upper part of their body, so the cool ceramic floor helps lower their body temperature. In the absence of a cool floor, dogs may roll over onto their backs, exposing their underside. It's another way to take advantage of that thin belly fur, since it gives a chance for the cooler outside air to draw away some of their internal body heat.

Unfortunately, none of these canine cooling methods are as effective as sweating is for humans. This means that dogs are at risk of heat stress and, more dangerously, heatstroke, as the body temperature rises to life-threatening levels.

The best strategy is to simply avoid situations where your dog might overheat. That means keeping your dog indoors during the hottest parts of the day and making sure that he has lots of water to drink. Cooling mats, vests, frozen water bottles in your dog's crate, and crate fans can help cool your dog while on the road or at dog-sport events. One of my favorite tricks is to freeze an ice cube tray full of chicken bouillon and toss one of these frozen "pupsicles" to my dog to help keep him cool and hydrated on hot days.

Bravecto, Bravecto Plus, Nexgard, Simparica, Simparica Trio, Credelio, Revolution Plus all contain Isoxazoline which is a neurotoxin!

It is only supposed to be toxic to the parasites however, data is showing the toxicity is NOT limited to parasites and we are seeing many adverse reactions in dogs and cats.

Some adverse reactions that my clients have seen include:

- Aggression
- Personality changes
- Seizures
- Disorientation
- Wobbling or unstable gate
- Sensitivity to touch
- Abnormal vocalizations
- Urinary or fecal incontinence
- Death

I have seen these adverse reactions happen immediately after administration, but I have also worked with cases where the pet parent noticed these reactions days, weeks, or even months later. Sometimes the reactions don't occur until multiple doses of the medication have been given.

MYTH: puppies should interact with a variety of people and other dogs as a part of "Socialization".

The correct focus is on Social Acclimation...learning to relax and focus around sights, sounds, new places, people, animals. The actual interactions with people and dogs should be very selective ideally with people you know will handle the pup correctly.

Sharon Clarke with Dash and Leo

Dash and Leo participated in the Standard Schnauzer National Specialty held in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma July 1-3, 2002. Dash came away with high in trial for the specialty and Leo participated in both obedience and in the breed ring with his Mom at the end of his lead.

From Oklahoma City, we traveled to the National Obedience Championship held in Wilmington, Ohio, July 9 & 10. Dash and I made the top 50! There were 140 invitees/participants. Additionally, in the working group, we were number 2 behind a Rottie and ahead of the number 3 position which went to a Giant Schnauzer and number 4 which went to a Standard Schnauzer from the East Coast, handled by Marcia Dawson. We were ranked at number 40 which earned us a slot to participate on Sunday for the opportunity to earn a place within the top 20. While we did an admirable job, we fell short of the top twenty, landing in the 30th position of the 50 participants.

Unfortunately, photos from the NOC are not yet available

Jane Nye with Henry and Grey-Grey

At the South Bay KC show on Sat, Aug 6, Henry achieved his Beginner Novice (BN) obedience title with a Third Place and a score of 192!

At 1 year old – he was the youngest competitor in the ring. Henry is ready to move on to Novice B obedience.

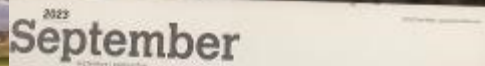

Henry also got his first leg of Rally Advanced (first time off leash) with a First Place and a score of 96!

Not to be outdone by his baby brother, Grey-Grey got a QQQ in Rally (score of 100 in Advanced and a Third Place – short legs don't lend themselves to speed...), got his 8th Rally Master leg, and achieved his RAE title at 2 years of age!

But, the most exciting news is that Grey-Grey is in three new Brown Trout calendars for 2023 (Mr. July, Sep, and Oct) – with awesome photos taken at Freedom Park by Pamela Marks!!!
